A Peculiarity of Carrots. Although carrots are among the most commonly cooked vegetables in various forms—stewed, boiled, puree, soups and introduced into goulashes, pies and mince pies—they are among the least digestible of vegetables; but, strange to say, notwithstanding their indigestibility, so far as regards form and substance, they are not known to cause any digestive derangement.

The great affection which cooks and their masters have for carrots can only be explained by their color, which makes an impression on the eye, and their flavor and sweetness, which speak to the palate.—Pall Mall Gazette.

JUST CREDIT.

Do not fear to give credit where credit is due. If we cannot do great deeds we can at least appreciate them in others. No jealous and envious spirit can rise to greatness, whatever opportunities are offered, and no broad and generous soul can ever live an ignoble life, however circumscribed its surroundings. A whole lifetime of humdrum duties cannot so narrow existence as does the habit of belittling the deeds and experiences of others.

Travels of a Volcanist.

Richard de Gumpowder was an enthusiast. He was so enthusiastic that he enlisted in the Harvard hundred, a volunteer corps. They matters became confused, for he was assigned to two different regiments.

In some way, however, he managed to persuade his superior officers that he would rather be wholly and entirely in one company than partly in two.

So one of his enlisted selves joined the other in the same squad. But now he was absolutely beside himself; every time he turned around he hit himself in the back; whenever he was out of step, he trod on his own heels; every time he—what should—what could he do? What would you have done?

But the captain was cleverer than you. He selected one of Richard's enlisted selves and made him an officer. So now Sergeant de Gumpowder once more has complete command of himself.—Harvard Lampoon.

Poe and the Magazine. With his stories and his criticisms during the meager two years of his connection with the magazine Poe was certainly able to reflect that as at no time in her previous literary history he had put Richmond on the map. But the letter he wrote to Anthony when projecting the Stylus was somewhat flamboyant: "I had joined the Messenger, as you know, in its second year, with 700 subscribers, and the general outcry was that because a magazine had never succeeded south of the Potomac therefore a magazine never could succeed. Yet in spite of this and the wretched taste of the proprietor, which hampered and controlled me at all points, I increased the circulation in fifteen months to 5,500 subscribers, paying an annual profit of $10,000 when I left it."—Algeron Tassin in Bookman.

A Remarkable Concert. A program of a remarkable concert which took place in Cleveland on Aug. 6, 1812, is still preserved in the city archives at that place. The entertainment was given for the benefit of the sufferers by the fire which had laid waste Baden and took place at the Saechschischer Hall. The only performers were Beethoven and Pollard, who played their own compositions. There were two pianofortes and two violins and several numbers in which both took part, says the writer. The account of the entertainment also mentions the fact that one of the interested listeners was a "tall, elderly man, wearing a great blue coat, who sat perfectly erect throughout the performance, never looking anywhere but at the stage. This was Goethe." The amount realized for the fund was about $200.

Odd Tobacco Pipe Borer. Travelers among the Sioux Indians are much impressed with the perfect smoothness of the bore in their pipe stems. Without the use of a tool of any kind they make a perfect bore in the twigs of ash trees, which they use for musical instruments and for pipes. To accomplish this end they employ the larvae of a butterfly which inhabits the ash tree. The Indians remove the pipe for about three inches from the stick they wish bored. Into this cavity they place one of the larvae of a brown butterfly, which gradually eats its way down through the pipe until the bore is completed. A little heat applied to the wood expedites the work of the larvae. The Indians consider both the tube made in this way and the larvae as sacred as their idols.—Popular Science Monthly.

Still, She's Long-Suffering. A Chicago wife suing for divorce complains that she suffered "six snakeless years." Well, even that's a little better than six snakeless years.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.
